Should the South and Hancock succeed, Confederate bonds would take a sudden rise in value.

The record of the Democratic party in handling the public monies, is thirteen times as bad as that of the Republican, and yet the Democrats want a change.

The only thing the Democrats have won by the election in Maine, is disgrace. They were too cowardly to go into a square fight for their Democratic principles.

When public sentiment put the question, shall the Nation be saved and business progress re-established? the Democratic party with singular unanimity said "No."

When the Democratic party first heard from Maine, it got drunk. It sobered off just in time to hear the guns booming for the Republican victory in Maine. The Democratic party took its drunks too soon.

A hard money Democratic candidate for President to a soft money candidate for Governor of Maine: "Accept my congratulations on the glorious result of your campaign." This is stunning state-manship.

The Democrats got terribly full of good feeling over the report that the Greenbackers defeated the Republicans in Maine. The same Democrats cheered over the Federal defeat at the first battle of Bull Run.

The only comfort the Democrats can find in the Maine election is that the Republican majority this year is not so large as it was four years ago. This is a pretty dry crumb, and affords very little nourishment.

Will any well-informed Democrat or any Democratic manager, name a single act to preserve the Union or to restore our prosperity, which the Democratic party has not strenuously opposed? Here is a chance for some champion of the Democracy to rise up and defend his party.

The difference between the two plainly stated:

General Hancock: The election of a Greenback Governor in Maine is a glorious victory. Let us keep it up.

General Garfield: An uncertain currency that goes up and down, hits the laborer, and hits him hard. It helps him last and hurts him first. Let us have equality of dollars before the law, so that the trinity of our political creed shall be equal States, equal men, and equal dollars throughout the Union.

Facts for those who cry for a change: The treasury department has prepared from the official records a statement of the average defalcations for the two parties while in power. Under Democratic administrations the average losses were $5,17 on each $1,000 handled by the government; under Republican Administrations the average loss has been 40 cents, on each $1,000. Or if possible, to put it in more forcible language, the defalcations of the Democratic administrations were thirteen times greater than the Republican defalcations.

Let us see. The National Democratic platform declares for a paper currency based on gold. It was compelled to do this after taking the other side for several years. On that platform General Hancock is running for the Presidency. The Fusionists in Maine adopted a soft money platform on which Plaiside is running for Governor. When the news first came that Plaiside was elected, Hancock became intoxicated with joy, and sent the following telegram to the supposed elected Greenback governor:

New York, September 11.—Accept my congratulations on the glorious result of your campaign. It will take such confidence and strength to them in the pecuniary battle which remains to be fought elsewhere and which need all our force.

This is a show of consistency which doubtless makes the Democrats proud.

During the first session of the Forty-sixth Congress there were introduced into the Senate 80 pension bills, and 500 in the House of Representatives, making a total of 580. At the next session there were introduced in the Senate 148 pension bills, and 630 in the House, making a total of 778 for the session, and 1,364 for the entire Congress. Of that number only 35 bills have passed both houses. Some of these bills were important ones because they sought to grant relief in meritorious cases. Pressing appeals were made in both houses at different times; but the Democrats turned a deaf ear, and job and private relief bills were allowed to take the place of pension bills. Verily, in the language of Belzhuover, the Democratic Congressmen from Pennsylvania, "Pension bills do not find much favor with the Democratic House."

Congressman Williams made a political speech at Middleport, Niagara county, New York, on Monday evening, where a great Republican rally was held. The Lockport Journal gives the following account of the uprising in that part of New York:

"The grand rally attracted Republicans from all parts of Niagara county, including a delegation from Lockport. In accordance with previous announcement, the Hon. Charles G. Williams of Wisconsin, in his early days a resident of Niagara county was the speaker of the evening. Just previous to his arrival in the village on the evening train from the east, the 'Middleport' Garfield and Arthur Wide-awakes, uniformed and mounted on horseback, upwards to eighty strong, under the command of Captain James Compton, Jr., formed in line, and after parading the principal streets, headed by the village band, proceeded to the depot to escort the speaker to the hall. The meeting held in Compton's Opera house, which will comfortably seat about six hundred persons. Before Mr. Williams arrived, it was densely packed, and many went away unable to gain admittance. Then for nearly two hours the attention of the crowd was riveted on the speech that followed. It was eloquent from beginning to end, and at times the applause was deafening."

Gabe Bonck has made a record in Congress, and he has announced that he is willing to run on that record. He has been in Congress nearly four years, and during that time he arose from his seat twenty-three times to announce that his colleague, Mr. Briggs, was paired with Mr. James, of New York. This is the only work he has ever done, except to join in the following debate:

June 30, 1879.—Mr. Bonck.—A quorum has not voted. Mr. Briggs.—I desire to have read, etc. Mr. Bonck.—A quorum has not voted. Mr. Briggs.—I desire to have read, etc. Mr. Bonck.—I will not. Mr. Briggs.—I will not.

The Speaker.—Does the gentleman desire to apply only to this resolution giving his consent to proceed with other business?

Mr. Bonck.—Yes, sir. Mr. Young.—Does not the point come too late? The Speaker.—The chair thinks it is not too late.

Mr. Young.—Did the gentleman rise from his seat? Mr. Bonck.—I did not rise, but I made the point.

Mr. Manning.—If the gentleman had not risen in time, we shall ask that the most stringent rule shall be observed in reference to the matter.

Mr. Young.—The gentleman says he did not rise. Mr. Bonck.—I did not say I was out of my seat, but I did make the point in my seat.

This is the whole of the Congressional record of the wonderful Democratic statesman in brass buttons, except that of regularly drawing his salary. If the Sixth district should permit this state of things to continue, it should be denied the benefit of business progress.

Within the past few days the country has witnessed the strange spectacle of the Democratic party rejoicing over what was at first supposed to be a Greenback or Fusion victory in Maine. This may not seem so strange after all, as the Democrats are ready to throw up their hats over a Republican defeat regardless of the importance of the principles sacrificed. They have no settled policy or honest convictions. They have everything to gain and nothing to lose. On all questions of supreme importance to this country, they stand like Douglas stood on the question of slavery, not caring whether it was voted up or voted down. While it is true that the last National Democratic convention did what a National Democratic convention never did before—declare for an honest currency—the Democrats in Maine were ready to upset that kind of financial theory, and form any alliance with the Greenbackers that was possible to make. They wanted to defeat the Republicans, and they didn't care how that was done. So, when the Greenback convention met on the first of June last, the Democrats met also; and when the Greenbackers nominated General Plaiside for Governor, the Democrats said, "that suits us," and he was endorsed by the Democratic State convention.

The Greenbackers adopted the platform, while the Democratic convention refused to have anything to do with resolutions. That part of the business was left wholly to the Greenbackers and fusionists. And what did the Greenbackers put in their platform? They resolved that all currency, metallic or paper, should be issued and its volume entirely controlled by the government; that our banks should be destroyed; that the irredeemable paper currency so issued by the order of Congress, should be a full legal tender in payments of all debts, public and private; and that 800 millions of the present standard silver dollar should be issued as speedily as possible. So that, notwithstanding what the National Democratic platform says on the currency question, the Democrats throughout the country waived their hats and cheered lustily on first hearing that the Fusionists in Maine had won a victory upon a platform which pronounces for an inflation of the currency, the destruction of the National banks, greenbacks as a legal tender to pay off the government bonds, and "Congress to run as a Greenback printing office." There are a good many honest Democrats who blush at the shameless inconsistency of their party; but the masses in that party do not seem to comprehend the important difference between loyalty and disloyalty, sound currency and wild inflation, or National honor and repudiation.

Mrs. Chattermug, a lady living on Nevada Street, got excited over the accounts of Dr. Tanner's fast and announced that she would refrain from talking for forty days. She began at nine o'clock in the morning and at 10:30 her pulse was so feeble from exhaustion that her physicians feared she would die by noon. At eleven her heart beat but twenty-six a minute, and her respirations were hardly noticeable. Her friends here urged her to discontinue her terrible task and told her some gossip about a neighbor. On hearing it she immediately rushed from the house, and going across the street met a lady friend and talked until 6:30 at night, and is now fully restored. Her record of nearly two hours and a quarter of absolute silence now takes its place at the top of the list. Congratulatory letters are pouring in from all sides and she has had several offers to take the lecture field.—(Carson, Nev.) Appeal.

Special to the Gazette.

New York, Sept. 18.—The latest Republican advice says that Davis is surely elected by over 500 majority. The Herold ridicules the Democratic cry of fraud.

SENATOR CONKLING.

New York, Sept. 17.—The meeting at the Academy of Music this evening to hear the address of Roscoe Conkling, was an immense gathering. The hall was packed, and the galleries were filled. There were 500 people on the stage, and 25,000 people in the streets were unable to gain admittance. The speaking was advertised to commence at 7:30 o'clock, but Mr. Conkling did not appear until 8 o'clock. The doors of the Academy of Music were thrown open at 7 o'clock. A large number of policemen had been stationed in front of the building in Irving place to control the crowd and assist in the collection of tickets. There were at this hour at least 15,000 people waiting to rush in. As soon as the doors were open the scramble commenced. The crush was terrible. The police were borne down by the weight of the crowd, and were completely powerless. The doorkeepers were utterly unable to collect the tickets, and were pushed aside or trampled on. They were glad to save themselves from bodily harm by getting themselves out of the way, and allowing the mass of humanity to rush by. They might as well have tried to stop a herd of buffaloes on a Western prairie when in full flight. People were carried from the street into the hall without touching their feet to the ground. The immense building was filled from roof to basement in fifteen minutes, and those outside struggled vainly to get through the doors, until it seemed as if the walls would burst. Men, women and children, women screamed, the police officers threatened the mob with their clubs, and ex-petitioned with them. A scene was enacted which it is impossible to adequately describe, and the like of which will not soon occur again in this city. Once inside the auditorium struck up "John Brown's Body," and it was immediately joined by a thousand other voices in the audience, singing the verse through. The singing was excellent, and the effect that it produced was prodigious, arousing enthusiastic cheers on the part of the waiting multitude.

After a brief interval, "America" was sung by the same chorus of a thousand voices. Then followed the "Star-Spangled Banner." About this time some patriotic (discovered) Governor Cornell in a private box with some ladies of his family was greeted with three rousing cheers, and would not be left alone until he arose and bowed his acknowledgments to the audience. Then some one proposed three cheers for Grant, which brought the whole audience to their feet in response to the call. The cheers were given with a will.

Promptly at 8 o'clock Mr. Conkling, accompanied by Hamilton Fish and several other prominent gentlemen, appeared on the side entrance of the platform. Instantly every man and woman in the building arose and with ringing hats and handkerchiefs in the air, greeted the speaker for which he is distinguished. When the cheering had subsided he took a seat, whereupon a perfect hurricane of enthusiasm broke out again, which compliment the Senator acknowledged by arising and bowing repeatedly as before.

A letter was then read from General Grant, addressed to General Chester A. Arthur, expressing his regret that he could not be present on this occasion, and the hope that the meeting would be a successful one, and saying that he intended to do all in his power for the success of the ticket, and that he intended to trust his vote for Garfield and Arthur. This letter, which was a very brief one, was greeted with loud cheers.

When quiet had been restored Mr. Hamilton Fish, the President of the evening, arose and made a few remarks introducing Senator Conkling, who at once began the delivery of his remarkable address. He was frequently and rapturously cheered. He had been speaking perhaps twenty minutes when the venerable Thurlow Wood, who has been feeble and sick for the past month, and scarcely expected to survive his illness, hobbled upon the platform leaning upon the arms of two friends, one on either side of him. The audience broke into tremendous cheers. Senator Conkling paused and shook hands with the old politician, and then continued his remarks.

The platform was filled during the evening with representative men who have distinguished themselves in the Republican ranks. Among these were Gov. A. B. Cornell, General Chester A. Arthur, the Hon. Edward Pierpont, General Judson Kilpatrick, the Hon. Dr. J. B. Newman, the Rev. Robert Collyer, the Hon. Marshall Jewell, and a long array of others equally distinguished in politics, theology, and literature.

During the evening a magnificent torch-light procession of Boys in Blue under the command of Major-General Cargill, paraded the streets. There were not less than 10,000 torches in line. In every point of view the demonstration in honor of Senator Conkling and the principles and the party he represents has been a remarkable and gratifying success.

MAINE.

Senator Blaine's Estimate of the Result of the Election in Maine.

AUGUSTA, Maine, Sept. 17.—Senator Blaine sent the following telegram to-day.

AUGUSTA, Me. Sept. 17, 1880. To the Hon. Marshall Jewell, Chairman Republican National Committee, New York:

We have complete returns with the exception of a few plantations, and I give you a summary of the result. In the election of 1879 the Republicans lacked 1,045 votes of a majority. This year we have made gains in twenty counties, held our own in two counties, and in two other counties we have made slight losses. Our net gain in the whole sixteen counties is reckoned at 1,300 as a minimum, with a possible maximum of 1,600, making Governor Davis' re-election a certainty, no longer denied by his opponents. The majority over Plaiside will probably not vary much from 400. We have chosen three-fourths of the county officers, more than two-thirds of the State Senate, and a large majority of the House of Representatives, giving us complete control of the State government in all its branches. Our only regret is the failure to regain the Fourth and Fifth Congressional districts. We succeeded in reducing the majority in each to about one-third of the fusion majority two years ago, but Democratic alarm over the result in Vermont, caused the application of arguments in both districts during last week, which we could not meet.

J. G. BLAINE.

THE OSHKOSH FAIR.

OSHKOSH, Sept. 16.—The third day of the Northern State exposition has been a decided improvement on yesterday in point of attendance, there being probably eight thousand people on the grounds. The receipts amounted to $3000. A brisk shower fell about 2 o'clock this afternoon, laying the dust and cooling the atmosphere. The special attraction to-day was a race between Akbar and Longfellow, the former horse winning in three straight heats; time 2:34, 2:40, and 2:33. There was a grand cavalcade of about 31 o'clock, headed by two steam wagons and two bands.

COMEDY.

THOMAS DAILEY ALDRICH.

They parted, with clasp of hand. And kisses, and burning tears. They met, in a foreign land. After some twenty years: Met as acquaintances meet. Surprisingly, tranquilly. Not even the least little heat. Of the heart, upon either side! They chatted of this and that. The nothing that made up life: She, the Gainsborough lady. And he, in his blue frock and tie. Ah, what a comedy this is! Neither was hurt, it appears: She had forgotten his kisses. And he had forgotten her tears.

We're weary watching wave by wave, And yet the tide leaves onward: We're like coral, grave by grave. Yet have a path that leads seaward. We're beaten back in many a fray, And where the strongest wave we bow, And where the strongest wave we bow, The rear shall rest to-morrow.

—Grand Massey.

Fashionable Glastonbury young lady at a social gathering remarks jestingly to Grimboly: "I wonder how much I would bring if I was put up at auction and sold to the highest bidder?" Just about $3000. "Why, my jewelry alone is worth that." "Yes, that is what I put it down at in my estimate."

The most insulting kind of impudence is tolerated at seaside resorts. "Have you taken a bath this morning?" is a question that may be asked of a young lady at such a place, and it is rarely ever resented. The same question in town would sever friendship and cause somebody to get hurt. —New Orleans Picayune.

The new French slipper with its low heel which displays so how the fanciful stockings of the period is easily lost off, and when a loser at a ball is a ball the slipper is claimed by the gallants and cut into a number of trophies. "Your slipper was so tiny, and you are so admired, that it would be half a good round," was the complaint that lately brought the blushes to the face of a young Newport dancer.

"Oh, pshaw!" petulantly exclaimed Miss Lydia Languish, looking up from the last new novel in response to a summons from her mother to come and assist in preparing dinner. "Oh, pshaw!" I am just where I want to be," said the lady Ethelinda Adele St. Clair, and wish I were had never been invented!" And the look of supreme disgust that flashed from her eyes showed that she meant it. —Binghamton Republican.

"Is your programme full, Miss Beele-cher?" asked a young man of a western dancer, who had just struggled out of the refreshment room, with disappointment in her eye, and an "out of dances" in her hand. "Programme full?" said the daughter of the Setting Sun. "Well, I guess not! I haven't had nothing but a piece of cake and an ice cream; and the cake was full of worms!" "You're a good girl, I can tell you," Boston Commercial Bulletin.

The newest thing in note paper is the address and date in an exact fac simile of the writer's handwriting in one corner, and a delicately pointed flower, crest, or a tiny landscape having some connection or association with the person by whom it is ordered. In the other corner, for instance, a lady whose residence happened to be the romantic name of Pansy Cottage, would have the small purple flower in the left-hand corner of her paper, and in the right her own handwriting accurately reproduced for the residence and date. "The great charm of this new fashion," says a society correspondent, "will be its costliness and the impossibility of its ever becoming common, as, of course, a new design and new plate must be made for every one who adopts it."

as usual, at the First Methodist church.

—The Guards are going to Atlanta

state, the necessary number of men

having been secured.

—The funeral of Mrs. Margaret Mont

will be held at the residence of J. B.

Carle to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The remains will be interred in Mount

Zion cemetery.

—Jaeger Cass will appear at the Opera

very good looking, his ears being too long, and he isn't much of a singer, but he is immense in his specialties.

—The firm of Burdick & Kimball, dealers in agricultural implements, have dissolved. Mr. Burdick has rented the Main street, and the first of next week will go to Chicago to buy her millinery stock, and hopes to get her business open soon. Miss Gertrude Griswold, who has entered her employ, will accompany her to Chicago.

—A pleasant social party was held last evening at the residence of Mr. John Nelson, in the Fourth ward. There were the usual parlor games, music, and dancing for those who wished to indulge in that amusement. Later in the evening a beautiful repast was served, and all went away with the feeling that they had spent a very enjoyable evening.

—Yo Peake family are to appear at Lappin's hall, next Wednesday evening, in full costume, and will give songs, tableaux, recitations, etc., crowding an evening full of fun and music, which will be free to the public at fifteen cents each.

The promise is that it will be one of the most enjoyable home entertainments ever given in Janesville.

—Despite the short notice given there were a goodly number of music lovers who gathered at the rehearsal of the Bower City Band. D. D. Bennett took his old place as leader, and threw new life into the players. It was a treat for all. Mr. Bennett's furlough has been lengthened, and he will spend some time drilling the band while here. An entertainment is talked of, to take place before he returns to railroad work.

—Best Accommodations for tent money,

—The Jefferson fair

Thursday was the big day at the Jeffer-
